To

the many friends and acquaintances who, over the years, have been generous with their help and time. They have given me a fuller education, help on my lines, and the conviction that genealogy is an exact science. One of these said of her help, "It's just bread cast on the water; from somewhere it will come back. It might even be cake."

They have my enduring gratitude, and this book bears the hope it may give help to others.

Our old records are not only mines of genealogical proof but are fascinating historical reading. Perhaps on one page you may be bored by the brief statement of one suit after another for debt, but then you will run into a juicy bit about Capt. George Jordan's now wife. It seems that she came to the colony to better herself, leaving a husband in England. She married (?) Richard Hill, left him and married (?) Jordan while her husband Daniel Coates was living. Of course scandalous talk resulted. She was accused of bigamy, but Daniel conveniently died. The Assembly kindly decided for their friend that the Hill episode was no marriage as Coates was living and since he died the Jordan one was legal!

The Justices looked with disfavor on having bastard children if it were a bondwoman, and the penalty was harsh but to Indians and other non-Christians (as an Egyptian!) the law did not apply.

These Charles City Orders immediately after Bacon's Rebellion give us interesting aspects. A good impartial history of this period is needed. I wonder if we will ever have it? Our first stand against unjust taxation*, Berkeley's attitude toward his appointment of Coll. Edw. Hill, plainly shows his attitude and Hill's arrogance and the vindictiveness of other governor's adherents in these orders give us an idea of the trials of the Colonists.

One can't go to England for impartiality, for letters and documents there reflect merely Berkeley and his cohorts. A footnote in Henning is interesting -- "The death of Bacon has never been satisfactorily explained. From lack of any detail it may be inferred that Bacon, Hunt and Cheesman may have fallen by the hand of an assassin hired by the government." (II H. 374.)

The above rebellion was against Berkeley, but they had a just cause against the King also. Economic conditions were so oppressive that little money was seen in the colony. Almost all business was by barter, principally in tobacco, often by assignment of debt. Many tried to pay in inferior tobacco, others let debts run for years. Furs, corn, meat and other products were legal tender also.

Writers have described Bacon's supporters as rough men of small means, but this is not so. As in our later Revolutionary War, Virginians of all classes were included. (Barradall p. 47; Cook, History of Va.). Some of our wealthy, prominent men were of obscure beginnings. In the light of our day we cannot interpret class then.

John Smith, a shoemaker in Charles City, wasn't a lowly cobbler but in all probability a member of the Cordwainer's Guild. Later you will see that he had journeymen and apprentices and stood well in the community. If you had an ancestor who was a draper, a grocer, a merchant taylor (Prince Henry was one), a cooper, a carpenter, be proud of them. Often younger sons of the gentry and nobility, they had tremendous standing. Mancini, the Italian ambassador in London, noted, "The merchants were no less proud and no less esteemed than the merchant nobles of Venice herself? (Halsted. Richard III p. 281.) Read a good history of the Guilds -- it is fascinating. In many instances the bond-servants were of a good class also. William Buckland, architect, who designed and supervised Gunston Hall, was brought over by George Mason as an indentured servant. His portrait by Poole is at Yale University. Don't sweep such ancestors under the rug, investigate them fully.

If these orders are not quite as abbreviated as some, it is due to my wish to give you a bit of the historical interest also.

ABBREVIATIONS

Order Books abounded in them and this book may seem to follow their example. However, only a comparatively few words are abbreviated -- the ones most used.

There was a choice of abbreviating, simplifying the impressive court headings or eliminating part of the book. I think a book should be published as a whole, in this case all of the remainder of these Charles City Orders.

Where tobacco was used it was always "tob & csk" (cask). Its use was numerous so I cut the "& csk." Understand it is meant. The cooper's business must have been important and prosperous. If you have a cooper ancestor don't be ashamed of him.

Drew has been forced to put the children in the hands of Capt. Wyatt from whom yr. petr. has obtained leave to keep them until such time that right might be done and she humbly prays that she might have the keeping of them. Osborne having threatened her she prays that he may be stopped and some honest, able person may be appointed to examine the condition of the sd. Limbry's estate and secure that due the orphans. (Women and children had a hard time in Colonial days with little recourse. This is in full to show it. Ed.)

The deposition of Nich. Wyatt aged 30 years or thereabouts. Early in last July a year ago, Mrs. Joane Osborne the wife of Elias Osborne came to his house with two orphans of Phillip Limbrey and requested protection for herself and the sd. orphans from the cruelty of her husband. Wyatt kept sd. orphans about three weeks some time after sd. Osborne and his wife had another quarrel. She sent the children again with clothes for yr. deponent to keep them Mrs. Osborne gave him possession of the children as she had power to do. Mrs. Drew the children's grandmother and Mrs. Lucy came and requested that they might keep the children until Mrs. Drew could petition the court for custody.

Where Anthony Havyhland petitions that your unfortunate petitioner was one in arms was under command of those who so wickedly prevailed and were possessed of all the arms and command in Virginia except that in Accomacke and yr. petr. after 12 weeks in prison was brought to trial before the then Governor and Council at Green Springs, the sentence being that yr. petr. should pay so much tob. and acknowledge his offense in certain courts with a rope about his neck but upon consideration the sd. Governor & Council remitted the sd. coming into any court in such a posture and the tob. only to be paid to give security for his future loyalty and good behavior which has been given. Now though yr. petr. has with loyalty, peace and obedience demeaned himself, yet causeless complaint has been made against him and the order given that since the original sentence was not rectified upon the record, that yr. petr. should come into court. If it is the will of the Gov. and Council yr.

Where as at the death of Jno Barker of Flowerdew hundred all the tract of land known as Flowerdew hundred did descend to Sarah then the wife of Richard Taylor, dec'd, and now the wife of Robt. Lucy, and to Elizabeth the wife of Phillip Lymbry, sister and co-heir with the sd. Jno. Barker who since sd. Barker's decease have held the land in co-partnership at inconvience to themselves and detriment of the land. Now the sd. Lucy & wife and the sd. Lymbry & wife do wish the land divided and have appealed to the court by mutual consent. Coll. Robt. Winn & Lt. Coll. Geo. Jordan are empowered by court order dated 3 Apr. 1677, to do so. Jas. Minge, surveyor, has been instructed to lay out the bounds dividing sd. Flowerdew hundred into two equal parts, the north land bordering the James River and Macock's land belonging to Dorothy, wife of Hubbert Farrel; the other being a line of stakes parting the sd. Flowerdew hundred in two parts. The south part is bordered by the east side of James River by Flowerdew hundred Creek, by Macock's and by the above line of stakes. A plan was drawn of the two halves, these 2 plans framed, put into a hat, a child drew them out and gave one showing the north part to the sd. Robt. Lucy & Sarah, his wife, and the south part to Phillip Limbry and Elizabeth, his wife, the parties having agreed to abide by the division & the drawing. 4 April 1673.
